

Homage to a multifold creation.

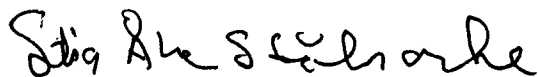

During my forty years as an art-critic I've seen thousands of pictures. I've experienced happiness, sorrow, melancholy and many other feelings in works.

But such a strong and neverending fantasy that I find in the painter Sven-Gunnar Svensson's pictures is very seldom found. I saw his many watercolours and after examining each one of them I was more and more struck with amazement. I thought – from where does this man get all his inspiration? How does he create the different forms growing into each other, meeting and then going different ways? Briefly – a fabulous richness of imagination and showing a world of fantasy that overwhelms you. The artist himself doesn't give titles to his works and I'm grateful for that. His pictures shouldn't be limited by empty titles setting bounds to your imagination.

It's up to you to take a tour in his artistic roller-coaster. He takes you through worlds showing you strange things overwhelming you with his neverending patterns and shapes. I have to admit that I often ask myself 'How does he create these powerful pictures?'

It's all about one of the most remarkable fantasy-worlds that I've seen and it's wonderful to realize that the possibilities of artists to fantazise and create are unlimited

Thank you Sven-Gunnar Svensson for your multifold creation.
